
COMMUNITY

YOUR NEWS

Is autism treatable and even reversible?

Join the Biomedical Intervention Group of Oklahoma City/Edmond and Aaron's Bridge (www.aaronsbridge.org) for the world wide premiere of the documentary, "Autism Yesterday." The documentary will be shown at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Oklahoma City Metropolitan Library Downtown Location, 300 Park Avenue. Admission is free.

The documentary was created by Generation Rescue (www.generationrescue.org) and follows the lives of five families on their journey to heal their children from a disorder that previously had been deemed a lifelong condition. In the film you will see the progress and recovery of the children using biomedical treatment as only families living through it can tell.

A trailer may be viewed at <http://www.autismyesterday.com/trailer.html>.

THE EDMOND SUN

SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 2008